PRICE THREE CENTS

Sixteen Merchandise Prize Awards Drawn Monday Evening in "BETTER BUSINESS CAMPAIGN"; Worthy Gifts

FINE PROGRAM IS PRESENTED; LARGE AUDIENCE

Little Mary Elizabeth Rose, 3, Draws Lucky Numbers in Hotel Annex.

MORE THAN 1,000 PERSONS PRESENT

More than one thousand persons packed the Hotel Gettysburg annex Monday night for the second drawing of merchandise awards in the "BETTER BUSINESS CAMPAIGN." The crowd was far in excess of the audience present on the opening drawing, November 18. For one hour preceding the drawing the audience was entertained by Miss Doris Louise Gittlin, eight-year-old dancer, and Philip Hershey, Gettysburg college student.

Miss Gittlin did a number of song and dance hits, with Miss Jessie Appleby at the piano.

The little dancer appeared in several costumes, singing popular selections and then danced to the same tunes. She was warmly received and responded to encores.

Marimba Selections

Philip Hershey, college student, pleased the large audience with a number of selections on the marimba. He played with and without piano accompaniment by Robert Nagle, Gettysburg seminary.

Hershey presented two numbers that particularly pleased the crowd when he used six hammers in executing the various selections.

As a farce selection he was introduced as using four hammers in each hand and playing a request number. Hershey started the selection with one whack of the eight hammers, then dropped six of the hammers and concluded the selection with two.

Little Miss Mary Elizabeth Rose, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rose, Baltimore street, again drew the "lucky numbers."

Mary Elizabeth made a decided "hit" with the audience. Dressed in a natty little blue and white dress, a small bow in her hair, she bowed sweetly as she was introduced and conducted herself in a manner befitting one of older and more seasoned experience before large audiences. She was warmly received.

Cash Door Prize

The cash door prize proved an attraction. More than 800 door-prize coupons were passed out to adults.

The drawing for the door prize followed the drawings for the merchandise awards. It was won by Mrs. Emory H. Dougherty, Carlisle street.

Next Monday night, the third merchandise awards drawing, another program of entertainment will be presented prior to the drawings and it was also announced that an "Amateur Night" will be conducted before the "BETTER BUSINESS CAMPAIGN" closes.

Plan "Eternal Light" To Burn From Atop Shaft as "Lasting Tribute."

COMMISSION TO HAVE OFFICE HERE

A huge peace monument, beautiful and attractive in its simplicity, atop which shall burn an "Eternal Light," symbolic of "peace, unity, harmony, friendship and neighborliness" to be erected on the Gettysburg battlefield was favorably discussed by the members of the Pennsylvania state commission at their organization meeting, in the Penn-Harris hotel, Harrisburg, Monday afternoon.

Commission members discussed the peace monument as "the most beautiful symbol that can be erected to forever unite these United States and to forever pay tribute to the soldiers who engaged in the struggle more than 70 years—to perpetuate the memory of those who have gone before and those who survive. It shall be a lasting tribute for all time."

College Plans to Limit Terms of Its 30 Trustees

Application will be made to the Adams county court of common pleas, Friday morning at 10 o'clock for the amendment of ten sections of the charter of Gettysburg college.

The amendments limit the number of trustees to 30, the present personnel of the board, two-thirds of whom shall be members of the United Lutheran Church in America.

Mosquito Project Is Called Off Few Hours After It Is Officially Announced Here

At 3:10 o'clock this afternoon The Gettysburg Times was informed by the Associated Press that WPA officials in Washington knew nothing about the rescinding of the mosquito project here. So far as Washington officials knew the project still stands.

Is Gettysburg going to have a mosquito eradication project? Some say "yes," and others say "no."

Last Friday The Gettysburg Times learned, officially, that the mosquito project had been "approved" and that work would start soon.

Previous to this announcement M. W. Bushman, chief project engineer of this area, formerly located here but now in Chambersburg, had rejected the project.

Undaunted by this move Councilman C. W. Epley and Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson appealed to Harrisburg headquarters for approval of the project.

Last Friday Harrisburg announced that the project had been approved. Shortly after eight o'clock this morning a prepared statement was turned into the Times office, four days after the announcement had been made of the project's approval. The exact statement follows:

"The Project for Control and Eradication of Mosquitoes in Gettysburg was approved last week, and is expected to get under way on Wednesday, November 27th.

"The Application for this project was signed by George R. Martin, Borough Treasurer, and C. Ray Rupp, President of Council. All necessary forms were made up in the local office, and forwarded to Chambersburg where, after receiving the endorsement of M. W. Bushman, Chief Project Engineer of this Area, the Application was sent to Harrisburg for approval.

"This is the procedure followed with all Project Applications.

"A. M. Schroyer, 'Project Engineer.'

Later this morning a reporter for The Gettysburg Times called at the local WPA office for further information. He was informed that Councilman Emory C. Williams, Hanover street, defeated for reelection, had been selected as foreman for the work of mosquito eradication at a salary of $90 per month.

He was also informed that the project, approved by Washington and Harrisburg, would give employment to eight laborers, a truck driver and a foreman.

Shortly before 11 o'clock this morning, the WPA office here said the mosquito eradication project had been "rescinded by Washington."

No reason was given for the rejection of the project. No information was forthcoming as to who objected, what protests had been made, or WHY the project was called off so suddenly after it had been approved.

The question is "Will Gettysburg control its mosquitoes through a WPA project?"

Some say "yes" and others say "no."

COUNCIL WILL PURCHASE OIL SPRAYER LATER

Councilman C. Epley Says He Can Use Machine Now to Combat Mosquitoes.

TWO PROJECTS ARE REPORTED

Purchase of a fuel oil sprayer for use in Councilman C. W. Epley's mosquito and fly eradication and control project will be postponed until after the new council organizes in January.

Council decided upon the postponement at a special meeting, Monday evening, on the suggestion of President C. Ray Rupp who said he did not feel the outgoing council should increase the borough's debt by the purchase of a sprayer.

"Inasmuch as the sprayer won't be used until next spring why not let the new council buy it."

Councilman Epley did not oppose postponement of the purchase of the apparatus, although he said that if the spray rig was purchased immediately he would spray oil on vacant lots and burn the weeds this fall.

Bids are Received "It is not necessary, however, that we have the sprayer until next March or April," Councilman Epley added.

Bids for two new sprayers and one second-hand job, almost as good as new, were presented to council by Councilman Epley.

George E. Hoffman, Arendtsville, submitted a bid of $475 for a new 200-gallon sprayer, while Martin A. Slade, sales manager for the Adams county fruit packing and distributing company, Biglerville, presented a bid of $497.50 for a 200-gallon sprayer.

Councilman Epley presented an oral bid of $50 for a second-hand sprayer owned by Frank B. Deardorff, of Gettysburg.

Other work in connection with the mosquito and fly eradication and control project will be launched by a force of eight men, a truck driver and a foreman, Councilman Epley added, instead of burning weeds.

After an inspection of the various mosquito-breeding places in town this morning Councilman Epley said:

"I am firmly convinced that we need the use of a sprayer at this time if we hope to eradicate the mosquito nuisance in this vicinity. If we had the use of a second-hand sprayer now it would be possible for us to clean-up these breeding places and later in the spring, when we secure our own sprayer, we can then continue our work. I hope that someone will be sufficiently interested to lend us the use of a sprayer now it would be possible time."

Progress of projects for the improvement of Winebrenner's run and the reconstruction of West High street was reported to council.

Council voted to pay William Ogden, Baltimore street, for the use of his garage as a tool shed during the work at Winebrenner's run.

Besides President Rupp, councilmen at the meeting included C. W. Epley, William Biddle, John E. Newman, Horace L. Bender and Emory C. Williams.

The "tip" on the plot came in an anonymous telephone call Sunday to Frank Costa, chief investigator for the state pardon board.

Aides of Attorney General Margiotti did not disclose the details of the purported conspiracy, but it was reported that Costa was told pals of the two men would attack the guard along the road to Rockview prison. Farrell and Wiley, sentenced for the kidnap-slaying of William Weiss, Philadelphia playboy, are in Eastern penitentiary. They were henchmen of Bobby Mals and Walter Legenza in the smashed "Tri-State" gang. Mals and Legenza were executed in Virginia for a holdup slaying.

5-Dionne Babies Receive Record Movie Salary

Callander, Ont., Nov. 26.—The Dionne quintuplets were established Monday as the world's highest-paid movie stars.

The five famous babies have been paid in advance $50,000 to appear in a full-length movie.

The miniature stars will appear before the sound-cameras for approximately 150 minutes, their pay thus being set at the rate of $333.33 per minute.

The $50,000 already has been deposited in gilt-edge securities in the quintuplets trust fund.

Must Be Protected

The guardians of the five little sisters agreed to allow them to appear in the film only after promises of the most elaborate precautions to protect the babies' eyes from Kleig lights, and otherwise to guard them against any ill-effects.

Meanwhile the uproarious young ladies, toddling about their glass-enclosed nursery, are living in a style fitting the world's highest-priced movie stars.

Their fortunes have changed greatly since that night almost 18 months ago when they made their debut in a startled world, in the ramshackle, poverty-stricken farmhouse of their parents, across the road from their luxurious new hospital.

Then they were without even the simplest necessities. Heated bricks, old clothes and rocks served as hotwater bottles. There was barely enough to eat in the house for their five older brothers and sisters.

The kindly country doctor, white-haired Dr. Allan Roy Defoe, fought against almost insurmountable obstacles to preserve the tiny spark of life in each of the five little bodies.

The world asked:

"Will they live, doctor?"

And Doctor Defoe replied:

"It's hard to say. If all of them live it will be a miracle. The chances of the smallest two are probably 1000 to 1 against survival. But—we'll see."

Incubators, nurses, medical supplies were rushed to the suddenly famous farmhouse.

The quintuplets lived.

Investigator Learns Lindbergh Ransom Notes Found in Boston and Worcester.

New York, Nov. 26 (AP).—The chief investigator for Bruno Richard Hauptmann declared today that he had learned on "unimpeachable authority" that Lindbergh ransom bills turned up recently in Boston and Worcester, Massachusetts.

The department of justice in New York said, "We had no information on this matter."

The investigator, who requested that his name be withheld, said he recently found in a house near Ashby, Massachusetts, a letter, dated March 10, 1932, ten days after the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped, which read in part:

"Why don't you return that poor little Lindbergh baby? You have had it long enough."

He said the writer and the recipient of the letter were known and that he would soon have "a full accounting from them."

In the same house, the investigator said, he found wood "similar" to that used in the ladder believed to have been used in gaining access to the Lindbergh murder.

Besides the handwriting and the wood, the investigator said, several articles used by a baby were found in the house, as well as newspaper clippings of other kidnappings, executed, in some respects, similarly to that of the Lindbergh baby.

Berwick To Build Portable Building

Taking advantage of WPA funds, the Berwick township school district, will erect a portable building beside the present Beaver Creek school, along the Hanover-Abbottstown pike, thus making it possible for the district to have graded classes, it was learned today. Final action was taken on the matter at a recent meeting of the board.

In order to have the graded system it was necessary to have an extra room and an extra teacher. Miss Florence Baer, Littlestown, was elected as the new teacher. The buildings of the district have been overcrowded for some time, officers of the district stated.

Work on erecting the new portable building will be started December 1, according to present plans, and will be completed for occupancy by January 1. The building was purchased at Pittsburgh. The total cost of the structure will approximate $2,000 a nominal sum of which will be provided by the district and the remainder by WPA funds.

All directors were present, as follows: H. C. Brinton, Adolphus Prock, J. W. Lucabaugh, secretary, Ulysses Rickstine and Charles Brothers.

Rev. D. F. Putman Is Speaker at Meeting Of Rotary Monday

The Rev. Dwight F. Putman, pastor of Christ Lutheran church, gave a Thanksgiving Day talk at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club at the Y. W. C. A., Monday evening.

Rev. Mr. Putman, after tracing the origin of Thanksgiving from Pilgrim times, read excerpts from presidential Thanksgiving Day proclamations from the days of George Washington to the latest issued by President Roosevelt.

The differences in the tone of the proclamations, reflecting the state of mind of the nation when each was issued were significantly pointed out by the speaker.

James P. Cairns, Springs avenue, manager of the Keystone cabinet company, Littlestown, was initiated as a new member by Dr. M. Hadwin Fischer.

$100,000 Blaze In Cumberland

Cumberland, Nov. 26 (AP).—A motion picture theatre, a photographic studio and several small business places were destroyed early Monday by fire that wrecked the four-story Samuel Wertheimer building here.

The total damage was estimated at $100,000. Origin of the blaze was undetermined.

Firemen rescued Mrs. Bee A. Daniels and her sister, Miss Gladys Clark, from the roof of an adjoining building. Occupants of a fourth-floor apartment in the burning building, they groped their way down the stairs.

Thousands of negatives were lost by George R. Eyerman, owner of the photographic studio. He is the son of Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman.

The building housed the Capitol theatre, of which Mrs. Grace M. Fisher is manager.

GREEKS GREET NEW MONARCH

Crowd Disappointed When King Fails to Issue General Amnesty Orders.

Athens, Nov. 26.—George of Greece came home Monday after twelve years in exile but a stormy welcome for the returned monarch closed on a sharp note of disappointment when he failed to make a specific gesture of amnesty to political opponents.

The be-monocled sovereign, who earlier was swung off his feet and flung aloft on the shoulders of wildly cheering thousands, issued a politely worded proclamation from the palace.

He did not refer to the hundreds of political prisoners or exiles beyond the statement, "I will bury the past." George, whose return effectively scrapped Greece's republic, had been expected to proclaim a general amnesty.

General Kondylis Reins General George Kondylis, who established himself as regent, resigned Monday night and his resignation was accepted by the King, who began to study the formation of a new government.

It was rumored that George would ask the "dark horse" Demetrios Maximos, former foreign minister, to become Prime Minister as a political peace-making gesture pending general elections.

The diplomatic corps, still unaccredited by the new regime, was conspicuously absent from the day's celebration.

Cavalry Charges Crowd So enthusiastic was the crowd in hailing the recalled 45-year-old monarch that it got beyond the control of police and swept him to their shoulders. Cavalry, with drawn sabres, charged the crowd. One person was reported wounded.

Landing from the cruiser Helle at Phaleron, George, attired in an admiral's uniform, drove with the Crown Prince in American-made automobiles to Athens. Here the streets were lined with flowers.

Formal ceremonies of the return were held under an improvised arch at the entrance to the ancient capital of Greece. A guard challenged: "Who goes there?"

"The King of the Hellenes," the monarch answered proudly.

The crowd then broke through police lines to hoist the monarch to their shoulders. When order was restored by the cavalry, a procession moved to the cathedral for a te deum mass conducted by the Archbishop of Athens.

3 MURDERS IN WEST LAID TO HITCH-HIKERS

Farmer, His Son, and An Attorney Killed By Man Who Admits Crimes.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 26 (AP).—The confessed slaying of a farmer, his son and an attorney, the meager details mumbled by a young man who tossed in a hospital bed with a bullet in his brain, was announced late Monday by Clint Miers, state operative.

Charles Daley, head of the state crime bureau, said that the wounded man, shot in a fight which preceded his capture near Blanchard, Oklahoma, had been identified by his mother as Chester Comer.

Miers quoted the wounded fugitive as confessing he killed Ray Evans, prominent Shawnee, Oklahoma, attorney, missing since Tuesday; L. A. Simpson, Piedmont farmer, and his son, Warren, missing since Saturday.

Last Seen With Hitchhiker Evans last was seen alive, accompanied by a hitch-hiker. Evans' abandoned automobile was found later. It was a red-stained sock.

The Simpsons last were seen at a point where a hitch-hiker had been let out of a car.

Comer, for whom a search had spread over five central Oklahoma counties, was captured by Oscar Morgan, Blanchard marshal, who was wounded slightly in a gun fight with the fugitive. At the time of his capture, authorities said, Comer was in an automobile belonging to Simpson.

G. O. Palmer, of Piedmont, identified Comer as a man he saw one-half mile from the spot where Simpson was supposed to have picked up a hitch hiker Saturday as he and his son were returning to their farm after visiting relatives.

Death Rather Than "Slave"

Frank Luschen, of Piedmont, also identified Comer as the man he picked up and hauled two and a half miles in a truck in the same neighborhood Saturday afternoon.

In Comer's pocket was found a card on which was written in pencil:

"If I am killed in this car I have nothing to regret for I'd rather be dead than a public slave."

Morgan, treated for his wound in a hospital here, described the capture and pistol duel near Blanchard.

Describes Pistol Duel

"I got in a car and went down there. I jumped him up and chased him about three miles. He drove his car into a bank and stopped. I got out of the car and went over to his auto. He was scrunched down in the seat. I reached for my gun and he shot at me through the window. He got me in the arm.

"I shot back at him twice, but I couldn't see him very well so I walked around in front of the car and shot through the windshield. I hit him between the eyes with the first shot. He was shooting at me all the time. I had to break the glass to get him out. He had himself locked in the car."

Propose Peace (Continued From Page One) Barre, were unable to attend the organization meeting. They will be present at the January twenty-third session, they said, and are keenly interested in the movement.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: Terry Willett has come down the scummy Palu river to Providence to see what he can do to hurry a shipment of needed equipment for the engineering job he and his father are supervising. The unstable native government is, he suspects, playing tricks with him. Drake of the National Coffee Company tries to help, but can do little. Terry is a tough youngster, who usually takes what he wants, when he wants it.

Shapter Two ADVENTURE

Terry had been around. Nearing twenty-eight, he had before he was twenty encircled most of the globe.

He had seen native gangs sweat their hearts out to raise a railroad trestle in the Andes. His life he'd once entrusted to a battered Ford car, fleeing across a desert three jumps and a wheeze ahead of a yelling throng of marauding Riffs in Morocco.

He had witnessed the death of his father's best friend and one of the most able and undaunted engineers that ever battled the forces of Nature to a standstill, Sam Colton, knifed by a heat-and-drink-madened peon in Mexico.

And to begin with, as is most logical that he, like everything else, should have a beginning, he was born in China.

It had been Colton's death that shocked tight-mouthed, rangy Lawrence Willett into the man he had been before Vic Willett had smiled—and died, while a Chinese maid-servant rose from her knees with a small bundle of humanity that its father could not see.

He became the maestro for his son—waving the baton of forgetfulness of a mass of auburn hair, a pair of fine grey-green eyes, a light laugh, by spurning an executive's chair and leaving behind him bridges, dams, and roads in all parts of the world, but never Memory.

How could he, when the boy who kept pace with him had Vic's red-dish-golden hair and her eyes.

And then—
Sam Colton had been sent back to the States for burial. The friend of both, a second father to Terry.

"Terry," Lawrence Willett said abruptly, "let's go home."

But it was too late. Terry had rolled a cigarette and stuck it between his thin even lips.

"Home?" he said ironically, his lean tanned face darkening. "You can head for the States if you want to, Dad, but I'm going to stick around and see that the louse who knifed Sam gets all that's coming to him."

And he had. That had been five years ago.

Vic—
The "Coliseo" was crowded tonight. Terry Willett lounged at the bar and moodily surveyed his surroundings, a cigarette drooping from a corner of his mouth, one hand idly toying with a glass before him.

The place left him cold. The men there were a conglomeration of foreigners, natives, sailors, and tough rawboned fellows from the engine-rooms of the ships in the harbor, dancing, drinking, singing lustily, while a women orchestra played from a balcony overlooking the floor and scores of other women circulated around among the tables, dodging away from grasping hands, smiling at insults.

The crowd left him alone. After one or two had approached him, they realized the tall hard figure at the bar was there to drink and nothing else. Proprietary liquor helped to speed the time of his departure.

He felt like getting royally plastered, but that wouldn't be so good. Of course, it would be nice to fade into oblivion and wake up just before the Dutch steamer cleared for the capital—he wouldn't have to stand here and think how his father had looked when he left.

The scene stayed with him even yet—the tall man at the water's edge beside the launch arguing with him, ordering him to get action from the coffee company's head office in the capital, the sun rising behind that jungle world, his father's eyes—

Sure, Dad was the boss, but it had been hard to leave him there at that leaden river with the sulky Chalkis all around him.

Abruptly he had another drink. Speed up time, try to forget this in-action. Again he dallied with the idea of getting drunk. No, might get into a tangle with the police and end up being held incommunicado for three days like the time he and Bucky Corrigan had landed in jail after that All Saint's Day riot in Juarez.

Grand fight that. He wondered what had happened to Corrigan. Hadn't seen him for a year—not since that Pontecillas-Juarez road job.

A man came in from the street, wobbling a little. Terry looked at him dispassionately. Odds that he'd fall down the flight of stairs from the door. As soon as he saw that the newcomer was either English or American he called all bets off. No sense wishing hard luck to a fellow like that.

The man gave an absurd impression of youth—why?—God knows. He didn't look young, his hair was tossed and rumpled, his tie pulled loose from his throat, his nose-too-clean white ducks were bunched and hunched about his form.

Maybe it was his queer triumphant grin as he successfully completed the descent of the stairs; maybe he'd wagered on the chance of breaking his neck too. That grin started Terry wondering. Something clicked in his brain—that brief-appearing grin seemed familiar.

But who could grin in Providence?—he disappeared into the crowd and Terry forgot about him.

Minutes passed. Others came in. He had another drink and wished something would happen. The music seemed to be getting louder and funnier. The hum of conversation, the wailing of the current singer, the tread of feet, the clouds of smoke swirled about his head. He decided to get out of there and into the cool night air.

And then there was the sound of a shuffle of feet, loud voices raised in altercation, and the sound of a body hitting the floor. Terry put off his departure to clamber on top of the bar and view with interested eyes the source of the disturbance.

A heavy, drunken Portuguese had lurched against the table of the man with the familiar grin. Even as Terry saw him rising to his feet and remonstrating with the Portuguese he fumbled around in his mind for a clue to that elusive identity. But now the Portuguese had slapped him—and Terry abruptly quit fumbling.

2-Mile Slit in Volcano Hurls Stream of Lava Toward Hilo

Hilo, Hawaii, Nov. 26 (AP). — Mauna Loa cracked under the pressure of a new upheaval Sunday, sending a cascade of white-hot lava down toward Hilo.

A slit two miles long appeared in the mountainside, and belched molten rock 400 feet into the air, with ear-splitting noises.

The scarlet river surged quickly two miles down the slope and rolled along the lava bed formed by the eruption of 1855.

Hilo viewed the new outbreak as the most significant of the recent activity. The 1855 eruption sent lava to within five miles of the city.

Observers said the hot stream would flow more rapidly over an old lava bed than over the rough terrain of the stretch between Mauna Loa and the city.

E. G. Wingate, superintendent of Hawaii National Park, who discovered the new outbreak, said the lava first formed a cone seventy-five feet high, around which molten rock swirled and boiled upward Mount St. Mary's college basketball five will open the season on its home court, December 14, against the University of Baltimore.

The schedule for 1935-36 finds the Mounts facing only Maryland collegiate league opponents, except for one game each with St. Thomas, of Scranton, and Baltimore U. besides a home-and-home game with Catholic university, Washington, D. C.

With several regulars from last year's championship squad returning, and Petrini, Appichella and miles from Hilo.

The great stream divided, part of it going toward Hilo. Part of the other portion headed along the saddle-back between Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea, and the remainder toward Keamoku, a cluster of sheep barns.

Observers said the latter flow would cross the mountain highway, providing a major traffic problem, if the flow continued. Visitors crowded the island to witness the spectacle. The volcano is forty miles from Hilo.

Kokie, newcomers, the Mountaineers appear as one of the strongest quintets in Maryland.

The nucleus for this year's team will be found in Segadelli, high scoring ace of last season, Bob Leahy, diminutive guard, and Charlie Reilly, hero of last year's play-off games. Other capable performers from last year's squad are Joe Leahy, Bill Sullivan, Bill Mitchell and Ed Bennett.

The schedule follows: Dec. 14—U. of Baltimore, home; Jan. 11—Catholic University, tentative, home; Jan. 15—Loyola, home; Jan. 18—Washington College, away; Jan. 21—John Hopkins, home; Jan. 24—Catholic U. away; Feb. 4—Western St. Thomas, away; Jan. 31—college, home; Feb. 11—Johns Hopkins, away; Feb. 14—Washington college, home; Feb. 19—Western Maryland, home; Feb. 22—Loyola, away; Feb. 28, St. John's college, away.

BULLETS DRILL FOR F-M CLASH

Local Tribe to Face Heavy Opponents at Lancaster; Yevak Is Injured.

Staging a short scrimmage before several hundred members of the student body who held their final pep meeting of the year on Memorial field, the Gettysburg Bullets Monday night had their last rough workout preparatory to the F. and M. game at Lancaster on Thanksgiving Day. Just two more days of polishing and the locals will attempt to perpetrate the biggest upset of a dizzy football season by overthrowing the mighty Diplomats who have gone through other conference opponents like a meteor.

With the students lustily yelling and singing "We Are Here to Cheer," the team went speedily through its routine.

Old man jinx hanging on to the very end removed in the last scrimmage Bob Yevak as a performer on Thanksgiving Day. At least that was the outlook following a hurried examination of his shoulder. Yevak had just received a pass and was turning to run when he fell and came up with another of those shoulder injuries that have dogged the team all year long, beginning with Cico's misfortune prior to the Juniata game.

Light Work Outs

Since the Ursinus game 10 days ago, Coaches Bream and Griffiths have worked their charges very lightly. It is their opinion that the present group of varsity footballers have been unavoidably overworked. Meeting all season long teams that are heavier from 10 to 20 pounds per man and pointed for them, the Bullets have had a strenuous year of it. Any attempt to use reserves has met with disaster, the Ursinus game proving the point. In the past ten days, complete layoffs, grass drills and dummy scrimmage have been very much the order of things.

Realizing that there is little possibility of opening up a line that is 30 pounds per man heavier than themselves, the Bullets will attempt an open game against the power machine of Franklin and Marshall. Passes beginning from every formation and steeped in deception will be the local's forte against the Diplomats.

Use New Kicker

Coach Bream plans to introduce a new kicker to Turkey Day fans. A large score in the Army game, the tie score in the Mt. St. Mary's game and defeats at Dickinson and Ursinus have in them the unfavorable factor of Gettysburg's sad punting this season. With good punting, of college caliber, the results would be different in each game mentioned. For several weeks, Coach Bream has been instructing Norman Moffitt in the art of kicking and now plans to give him game experience at Lancaster, Thursday.

Despite Yevak's injury, the Gettysburg team is probably in better physical condition than at any time this year. Cico, Walker, Fish, Shadle, Sassaman and Ross, who have been out of a number of games appear to be physically ready for Thursday. As a result, the Gettysburg coaches will send on the field what has proved their strongest combination. That means Fish and Sobolesky at ends, Serfass and Walker at tackles, Wagner and Ross at guards, McCahan at center and the following in the backfield: Cico, Cook, Superka and Moffitt.

The Thanksgiving Day game with F. and M. will be the last for a number of Bullets who have been the bulwark of Orange and Blue teams for several years. These men include Cico, Sassaman, Sobolesky, McCahan and Caldwell.

BIG CRAFT AT WAKE ISLAND

China Clipper Has 3,200 Miles Ahead to Complete Record Mail Hop.

(By The Associated Press) Wake Island, Nov. 26 (Via Pan-American Airways Radio).—Airmail sped across another stretch of the vast Pacific ocean today when the China Clipper landed here en route to Manila after a swift 1,191-mile flight from Midway Island.

The clipper saluted its first surface vessel when it dipped wings to the Dollar steamship President Lincoln today.

The seaplane flew low over the President Lincoln shortly after it had passed the international date line on its flight from Midway to Wake Islands.

The seaplane glided easily to a landing at 1:40 p. m. (9:40 p. m. Monday, Eastern Standard time). It required 8 hours and 28 minutes for the flight, an average of about 125 miles an hour. Capt. E. C. Music, skipper of the twenty-five-ton craft, had estimated ten hours would be required.

In about thirty-eight and one-half hours of flying, the China Clipper has crossed nearly 5,200 miles of the 8,000-mile distance between Alameda, Calif., and Manila, end of the present journey to establish trans-Pacific airmail service.

MAY RELIEVE HEART TROUBLE

This contraption, a bed that rocks gently like a see-saw, was described before the Southern Medical association by Dr. C. E. Sanders of Kansas City as a successful method of treating heart trouble resulting from various types of circulatory disorders. "Filling and emptying the veins and capillaries by gravity redevelops lost muscle or elastic tone and relieves the strain on the heart," he said. (Associated Press Photo)

Mail and supplies for the Wake airways station arrived aboard the seaplane, which also brought nine employees to be stationed here.

The China Clipper left Alameda Friday afternoon and stopped overnight at Honolulu and Midway.

On today's flight the international date line was crossed, and time aboard the four-motored craft jumped ahead one whole day.

A 1,500-mile flight to Guam, last of the island way stations, and then a flight of 1,700 miles to Manila remain.

Present schedules call for the voyage to Guam tomorrow, and the Manila flight Thursday. The entire voyage, which takes a month by fastest liner, is expected to be completed in sixty hours actual flying time and about five days elapsed time.

The China Clipper has some 1,500 pounds of air mail for Manila. Most of it came from United States stamp collectors, anxious to save the stamps from the first trans-Pacific air mail flight.

W. N. HARTMAN

Director of the Poor

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—It is an accepted verity that if you pass through the west 40's at approximately 4 o'clock in the morning you will observe a group of shabby panhandlers, armed with paper bags, making the rounds of the all-night restaurants.

This is the one "all the larder" scheme in Manhattan that never fails.

What happens is that the bosses of these all-night eateries save the left-over doughnuts and the stale cake for the hungry ones, occasionally tossing in a spare chop or an extra link of sausage.

After the tour of collection is over they shuffle off to a deserted park bench and gorge themselves against the next 24 hours of famine. Sometimes this is the only meal they have.

But, it is Harlem that provides the most extraordinary of the rehabilitation enterprises. The sepiu belt is a fertile spot for ideas. Only there it is known as "rent party" night, and the mechanics involve some highly colored (no pun intended) antics.

When a black boy or gal has difficulty in stalling off the landlord he announces a "rent party" to be held at his house on Sat'dy night. Then he purchases (on credit) half a dozen fryin' size chickens, obtains similarly a quantity of spirits, and charges a general admission fee of $1.

Harlem comes awhooping, and atropin to any rent party. It's the fraternity spirit. Everybody tosses in an extra fo' bits for liquor, and by this time the dice are galloping like mad horsemen. Of course, the host gets 10 per cent of all winnings as his "take," and forthwith he settles with the chicken man and the liquor man, squares accounts with the landlord, and has a few bucks left over with which to begin life anew the following Monday morning.

Ambling into my favorite tavern I found the damsel Miriam Hopkins weeping silently into her sassafras tea.

"Sometimes I laugh with tears in my eyes," she explained. "I'm not really crying. It's like this:

"I just heard from Johnny Travers and Johnny complains of heartlessness on the part of an aviator. Being considerate of others, Johnny is not a body to forgive savagery in others. It appears his pal was wandering about the airport where this pilot occasionally puts in, and he almost walked into a whirling propeller.

"Look out!" screamed the pilot angrily. "If you walk into that propeller you are liable to BREAK IT!"

"This, Johnny feels, was something of an understatement."

Barging into Times Square the other night I thought a riot had broken out or a new underworld gang had been corralled. A cordon of mounted police, 35 in all, surrounded the Times building, and foot troops were everywhere. But it was only a precautionary measure, in case the crowd became unruly as election returns were broadcast.

Most New Yorkers have no idea of the savagery of the Hudson as it pours into the maw of a high wind. On a recent ferry crossing the white caps were eight feet high.

Expect Shoppers Will Spend More This Year

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press) S Kansas City, Nov. 26.—The nation's Christmas shoppers will spend 10 to 15 per cent more this year than last in the belief of business leaders from coast to coast.

The buying rush is on, earlier and heavier than it has been in years. Merchants from metropolis to Main street expressed confidence today of volume surpassing all recent seasons.

Spending in some leading cities is expected to be twice that of depression years.

Reasons, given in a survey among businessmen the nation over:

"Payrolls are going up."

"Prices are higher."

"Federal aid."

"Good crops."

"People have more money to spend, they want better goods."

Stocks Out Early

The country's retailers, feeling increased buying trends, trotted out their Christmas dainties early and found a ready market. More important to them, they found an increased demand for staple merchandise. Sales, they said, are not limited to a pre-Christmas rush. All lines are selling at a pace akin to the good old days.

Bernard F. Gimbel, president of Gimbel's, Inc., New York, said, "with colder weather over the country there has been an uprush of business, especially in the higher price units. All signs are most favorable."

Tom May, of the May company, Los Angeles, predicted, "the volume will be about 50 per cent higher than it was last year. The answer is simple. People have more money to spend."

Dun and Bradstreet's forecast for San Francisco was "best in years."

A. B. Trot, head of Daniels and Fishers, Denver, said "the anticlimax after spending several days with friends in Baltimore."

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bixler and son, Richard, spent Wednesday in Mt. Airy, Maryland.

M. A. Parr, Littlestown, visited Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Parr last Thursday.

Mrs. John Schwartz, Round Top, is spending several days with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sheely.

The Ladies' Aid society of St. Luke's church held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Calvin Sentz last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinten Robert are spending several days in Pittsburgh. Mrs. Robert's mother's sudden illness necessitated the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Clair Snyder and children and Mrs. Samuel Snyder spent last Tuesday in Hanover.

ated increase here is due to a number of causes, one of which is the fact merchants are receiving better prices for their goods."

"The story is reflected on any financial page," declared L. L. Austin, head of a retail merchants association in Atlanta, Georgia.

A cross section of this year's Christmas trade that will dump millions into business channels shows:

East. Cities expect sales upward to 25 per cent ahead of last year, 50 per cent better than 1929. New York, Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C., storekeepers are preparing for what one termed "the best holiday season in several years." Some Philadelphia stores underestimated the demand and ran short of stocks early.

Far west, mountain states. Pacific coast Christmas buying estimates range from Seattle's "quite a little better" to the 50 per cent increase in Los Angeles. San Francisco expects a 20 per cent improvement. Denver retailers saw a better season in early shopping. Salt Lake City said 1934 and 1933 would be overshadowed and Reno, Nevada, estimates were 10 to 12½ per cent higher.

15 Per Cent Better

Central. Chicago dealers expressed the tone of the central section by predicting a 15 per cent better Christmas than last year. Other cities said sales would double those of the depression holidays. Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus and Indianapolis expect increases of five to 20 per cent and the prediction in St. Louis of "the best holiday trade in years" was reflected early in the cash registers of St. Paul, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Des Moines.

South, southwest. Spring-like weather retarded fall trade to an extent in Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia and Kentucky, but there were ready buyers for Christmas goods. Heavy industries are moving in the south, encouraging the holiday trade.

Dallas, Texas, expects business to be 18 per cent better than last Christmas, with gifts up 20 and staple goods 15 per cent. Oklahoma City's prospects are for an "exceptional Christmas business." The southwest generally welcomes "an improvement in conditions."

BALTIMORE

(Union Stock Yards)

The salable supply of live stock yesterday approximated 1,900 cattle, 600 calves, 1,400 hogs and 1,500 sheep and lambs.

Cattle—The increased offering in the cattle division was generally characterized by a recent Monday price. Cows and low cutter cows were fairly abundant while up steers were scarce.

Medium grade, with quite a sprinkling of common kinds. Heifers continued scarce. The increase in supply appeared to meet a rather narrow outlet as trading opened. The demand was very slow and up until mid-forenoon very few sales had been made. The selling side, however, continued to ask for strong to high prices, and as a result a factor in contributing to slow action. As trading developed, steers began to weaken and prices showed losses up to 25c., as compared with Thursday, while other slaughter classes held steady to weak. The volume of stockers and feeders was small and scattered.

Stratosphere Trip Pictures
Expected to Bare Secrets

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—The announcement Monday of "complete success" of spectrograph flights taken on the National Geographic Army record stratosphere flight means that science soon may know the nature of the upper air "armor" protecting man.

The films, examined by Gustave Passin at Rochester, New York, gave a picture of the stuff composing the thin upper air. They show, down to a few parts per million, the kind of gases up there.

These gases act like true "armor plate." The existence of these air belts has been known from the action of ultra-violet light and from the fact that radio signals reflect from them.

Did Not Reach Known Radio Layer. On their 13 1/2-mile-high flight Captains Albert W. Stevens and Orvil A. Anderson, U. S. A., did not reach the known radio layers, but they penetrated the region where it is suspected that the lowest armor belt lies—the layer of ozone which screens out killing ultra-violet rays of the sun.

Scientists have had two guesses about the structure of this ozone layer. One that it was no thicker than a calling card. The other, more widely believed, that it is a region hundreds of feet, perhaps miles thick, where ozone is plentifully mixed with ordinary air.

Expected to Show Wave Lengths. The spectrograph pictures will show precisely how much more ultra-violet there is at thirteen miles. Not all the ultra-short waves are lethal. The spectrograph will show

Nazis Call Miss Mayer Full Citizen Despite Jewish Blood

Berlin, Nov. 22 (AP).—German Olympic authorities Monday announced receipt of Helene Mayer's acceptance of an invitation to compete for Germany in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin and, at the same time, assured the famous fencer she would be considered a full German citizen despite her Jewish blood.

Miss Mayer's acceptance was sent before the latest Jewish laws were published, but in the interim Olympic officials obviously were worried about how they were to give Miss Mayer a place on the German team and, simultaneously, avoid setting a precedent for other Jewish questions.

This problem, however, was settled by the decree of November 15 whereby Jews, and therefore non-citizens, were adjudged to be those persons of seventy-five per cent, or more Jewish blood. Miss Mayer does not come within this category according to information here.

The Olympic committee, in a message forwarded to Miss Mayer Monday, mentioned these changes in Nazi conceptions and emphasized she could come to Germany sure of receiving full rights and welcome.

The new Jewish laws of November 15 say: "A Jew cannot be a citizen. . . . A Jew is one who stems from at least three full Jewish grandparents." Also listed as Jews are persons who have married or had relations with Jews and who are descendants of at least two full Jewish grandparents.

"We are sure it means a great deal and that you will help to make Adams County a healthier and happier place in which to live by purchasing the enclosed Christmas seals at a dollar per sheet of 100, or fifty cents per sheet of 50."

"The men and women whose names appear on this letterhead are sponsoring the sale in Adams County to secure funds with which to increase and strengthen the fight against tuberculosis. "The funds raised through the sale of these little seals at Christmas time each year are used to promote better health, with special emphasis on PREVENTING tuberculosis, also by furnishing the necessary comforts of life to those afflicted with this dreadful disease, and furthermore by providing milk for under-nourished children in homes where Federal relief does not supply this necessity."

"The number of seals sent you is recorded with your name on the reverse side of the return envelope. If your address has been changed, make the correction on the return envelope before mailing your contribution. Also check the spelling of your name."

"We wish to thank you kindly for your cooperation and support in past years. We hope that you will continue to support our association not only by purchasing the enclosed seals, but also by your continued interest in our work."

"For your convenience an addressed envelope is enclosed for your contribution. Place a three-cent stamp on it, and mail it at your earliest convenience."

POLICEMAN IS HELD AS THIEF

Allentown Officer Suspected Of Being Perpetrator of Many Offenses.

Allentown, Nov. 26 (AP).—Robert D. Leonard, a city policeman, was arrested Monday night in the investigation of a series of sixty-one robberies in Allentown in the last eleven months.

Leonard, who was recently detailed as a plain clothesman at his own request to run down the night prowler, was relieved of his revolver and badge when he reported for duty Monday night. He was taken to the state police barracks at Wyomissing for further questioning.

Captain William J. Detweiler, of the city detective force said that Leonard denied participating in the robberies, which included the offices of three county judges, the district attorney, an alderman, a church, a dozen lawyers, real estate agents and insurance men. Detweiler said, however, that the investigation points to Leonard.

Leonard was charged in warrants with robbery of St. John's Lutheran church and with forgery.

Sixty-one robberies are blamed on the much-sought burglar. From the office of district attorney John H. Diffenderfer, a check for $280 was taken and subsequently cashed at Easton. What loot, if any, was taken from the judges' chambers was not revealed.

A checkbook was stolen from the office of St. John's Lutheran church and a night or two later, Alderman W. F. Bower's office was entered and a notary's seal taken.

Last week, a man presented a check on a local church to the manager of a Lebanon chain store and showed a letter purporting to give the bearer right to cash such checks. The letter bore the notary seal of Alderman Bower. The manager of the store took the license number of the check and Detective Detweiler said subsequent investigation by state police and himself pointed to Leonard.

Bright Side Out A THANKSGIVING MESSAGE

Thanksgiving blessings do not all come in equal sizes. Yours may be larger or smaller than your neighbor's . . . But, if you observe Thanksgiving in the true Pilgrim spirit, there will be no room in your heart for either pride or envy, or for discouragement . . . You will give thanks for the good things in your own life, and you will join with your fellow-Americans in a great prayer of gratitude that your homeland is enjoying the fruits of returning prosperity and abiding peace.
